About IFPP:

The Indian Foreign Policy Project is a cross-university student-led effort to engage young Indian voices in international relations and politics and expand foreign policy discourse across academic spaces. Every month, IFPP publishes comprehensive articles about contemporary events in International Politics. Our research scope extends to South Asian geopolitics, European and Western Affairs, Global South politics, and Chinese foreign policy.

About the Role

We are currently seeking dynamic and driven individuals with a strong interest in international relations and strategic studies to join our team as a Research Intern. This position offers a unique opportunity for passionate individuals to engage deeply in complex global issues, including geopolitical dynamics, international security, and conflict resolution.

You will be tasked with conducting in-depth research and analysis, with a focus on producing high-quality articles and papers. Exceptional writing skills and proficiency in media design will be essential for effectively communicating findings to a diverse audience.

This internship is ideal for ambitious students and high schoolers eager to expand their horizons and contribute meaningfully to the field. Successful applicants will have the opportunity to develop their expertise in areas such as foreign policy analysis, research paper writing, and assessing geopolitical risks and impact, as well as researching and learning about diverse new subsets of IR.

Joining our team means immersing yourself in a stimulating and collaborative environment where your contributions will make a tangible impact on global discourse and understanding. If you are passionate about exploring the intricacies of international affairs and are eager to embark on a rewarding career path, we invite you to apply for this exciting opportunity.

Weekly Commitment
